

October 22, 2013

We've Added A Blog!

You asked for it, and we listened. Frequently we'll place a new, informative post here concerning culinary topics, business related influences and share some of our favorite recipes. The educational business programs we offer provide complete detail and step-by-step instruction and reasoning why to do something one way over another. We won't attempt to get into that much detail via a blog alone, but we do anticipate discussing many of the pertinent topics and areas of concern for home based culinary business owners, and potential owners. We hope you bookmark this page and return weekly to see what we've shared. Hopefully along the way we'll touch on subjects that have true benefit to you, and which are thought provoking. Sometimes all it takes is a new suggestion, the right phrase or a good example to turn the switch on for you and your own situation. If our blog can be of assistance, then it's a win-win situation. And if our topic of the week isn't your cup of team, no harm done and maybe the next topic will be of more interest. We'll try to throw some of our favorite recipes into the mix also, and any culinary minded individual knows better than to not at least give a new recipe a quick once over and evaluation. So for now, congratulations on finding this new source of culinary news and information. We hope you enjoy receiving this as much as we enjoy providing it for you. Tell your friends and share the wealth – we've got room for everyone!

