

July 31, 2015

Unique Situation: I'm Sick

The Situation:

It is your first winter season as a personal chef. It is this season that you, like most people, get a cold. You don't typically require bed rest, but wonder if you should continue to cook for your clients.

The Question:

Do you cook for your clients, despite being sick?

The above was a situation or encounter as described by a third party. The Culinary Business Institute added a follow-up question for your consideration. Our response to this question is available in the Personal Chef 1-2-3 training program. For now, your exercise is to answer the question or provide a solution to the situation. In some instances you may not have every bit of information – which may affect your decision. If in doubt, plan for a worst-case scenario. Always consider that resources may not be available, time is working against you and that you need to find an answer that benefits all involved plus keeps the client happy. Sometimes there are more than one correct answer or approach.

